Association viewing of the documentary

“No Fire Zone.”

The 49-minute documentary profiles the last awful final months of the 26 year long Sri Lankan civil war told by the people who lived through it. Its' a meticulous and chilling expose of some of the worst war crimes and crimes against humanity told through the extraordinary personal stories of a small group of characters – but also through some of the most dramatic and disturbing video evidence ever recorded.

Following the film there will be a questions and answers section and a way to help put pressure on Sri Lanka to change this practice.
